The course presented the same animated and crowded scene as yesterday, but every where there was a marked absence of the Yale and American colors. On all sides were heaff expressions of regret at the defeat of Yale, and even among the Leander men, who were the victors in the reat of vaie, and even among the Le-ander men, who were the victors in the contest. This feeling was more partic-ularly noticeable in the people of Hen-ley proper, for the sudden flight yes-terday of crowds of Americans deprived this little town of a great deal of the golden harvest which it reaps during Nickalls, and in the fifth hear for the Grand Challenge Cup, Leander beat New College. These were both popular victories. Tet there was a lack of that grand enthusiasm displayed yesterday, upon the occasion of the ruce between Yale and Leander. Dr. McDowell, of Cheago, was looked upon as a certain winner to-eday before his heat was started, and there are many people who prophey that he will win the Diamond Scuils to-morrow. The American sculler's fine display of rowing skill and power has completely altered the tone of the Henley comments upon his chances and has won him many Both boats got away promptly, the craws rowing a tremendous stroke of over forty-three. New College shot ahead, and on clearing the Island, had a lead of a quarter of a length. At the end of a minute New College was clear of Leannier and dropped to a thirty-eight stroke, while the Leanniers, with a desperate look on their faces, were pulling forty-two.

forty-two. "They've got it," said the Leander's "They've got it," said the Leander's coach in the launch, "we're beaten."
This turned out to be a false alarm, for the Leanders, led by Gold, who was pulling a magnificent stroke, began to slowly overhaul the New College men. Fawley court was reached in $20, with New College still feading, but steering wide and evidently in trouble.

New, however, would not give up, and it looked like a desperate finish. Just at that point, the wind, which had all through the race been blowing strongly from the southwest, came in strong gusts, fairly stopping the New College boat, and Leander won the hardest fought race ever seen at Henley.

Guy Nickalls, the No. 8 of the Leander boat, was worth two men, especially at the finish, when he had to pull the boat by himself. Leander's couch on the launch said to the couch of New College: "Well, old man, it can't be helped, It was the station which did it. You had the race won but for that."

Both crewe were terribly exhausted. Dawson, of the New College crew, tumbled over completely done up, and the Leanders were in little better condition. Gold held on to his oar, but he did so with his head back and it was a long time before he could get breath.

Naturally such an exciting race caused the greatest enthusiasm ashore, and the Yale men were especially delighted at the fact that their victors would in all probability set the cup.

In the opinion of experts, if Yale had rowed under conditions which prevailed to-day she would have won, as the Bucks station was worth at least two lengths. The heat between the First Trinity and the Thames rowing club was won by the latter, which was rowed at 12:30 and before the New College-Leander, and was also a splendld exhibition of rowing, but here, again, the station won.

James O. Rodgers, No. 4 of the Yala crew, referring to the New College-Leander race, said:

Coxswain Clarke said: "I am very glad Leander wan, for it shows what we had to do yesterday."

Mrs. Ida Greenwood yesterdfly evening lodged a complaint with Squire Mason charging Robert Waliace with an assault with intent to kill upon her hitsband, Charles Greenwood. It is an ugly case and the fight occurred at Georgetown, west of this city, two or three evenings ago, but seems to have been kept quiet for some reason. Greenwood is a harmless sort of individual, but from what can be learned, some of his companiums at Georgetown filled him with stories about Wallace, and getting him well filled with liquire had him visit the Wallace home to whip Robert. He went and they quarried, but just as Greenwood was leaving. Wallace picked up a coal miner's pick and slipping up behind Greenwood, he drove it into the back of his head and neck, producing a frightful wound. It was a glancing blow or Greenwood would have been killed.
Their speparts to be some danger yet, and this is what led his wife to make the complaint against Wallace. The hearing of the case will be this afternoon.
